"The Slipstick"

Glouce to the Slipstick's let the Slipstick's name be known

The old Slipstick is taking the last bowing for the school year of 1932-33. It has served us faithfully in bringing news to you, in reviewing the school year, and in giving you the news of the world. It will be missed by many, but it will leave us with the feeling of having contributed. It is only through the contributions of our readers that the Slipstick can continue to publish. Without your support, the Slipstick would not be able to continue to serve as a platform for student voices.

JUNE AND GRADUATION

June, the time of transition, for the senior is fast drawing near. No matter how big the senior is, the Slipstick is the leader in the race.

June 22 will be the day on which the Slipstick will be published. Just the slip of a piece of paper in the hand, the hands touch to receive with the senior voices, the news of the day.

Even though he can’t answer their questions when they walk by,

Or perhaps he’s glad to have the Slipstick.

And often the man whom we see in the town.

Still he will brush under constant rival voices.

JUNE 22

And becomes a weed spoke in the school's speech.

Moving in the world of voices, the Slipstick moves with the times, ready to grab the job that he wants.

Tech Shorts

Only one week before the final round of the season, the University of Tech, which has maintained a record of financial solvency and can boast of the fact that the average attendance at its home games is one of the highest in the league, has been forced to face the possibility of financial ruin. The situation has arisen largely due to the fact that the Tech athletic department is facing a deficit of several thousand dollars, necessitating the temporary suspension of all athletic activities. The Tech administration is presently considering various options to alleviate the financial strain, including the possibility of reducing the number of athletic scholarships, increasing ticket prices, and exploring opportunities for corporate sponsorships. A decision is expected to be made in the coming week.

In other news, the Tech baseball team, currently ranked 12th in the nation, has announced the signing of a star pitcher from a neighboring college. The addition of this player is expected to significantly enhance the team's performance. Meanwhile, the Tech football team is preparing for its upcoming season, with Coach Smith emphasizing the importance of discipline and teamwork in achieving success.
